DIRECTOR'S THANKS

First and foremost, I would like to thank you for coming to our production. Without an audience, the words of Lorca and the other great dramatists of the world would go unheard. This production would not have been possible without the help of some very important people. I'd like to say thanks to my parents, Kathy and Jamie Floyd, who not only offered their support, but also their money, to this production. Also to the Community Renaissance Marketplace by allowing a lot of crazy theatre people to do what they love. Thanks to Jessie Robles, my tireless stage manager and right hand man. And last but definitely not least, my entire cast and crew who have worked tirelessly to get this production prepared. But I'd like to specifically thank two of my fellow artists and friends, Steven Brandt and Sabrina Tarbutton who have been there right next to me offering help and support. I could not have brought this show together if it hadn't been for this group of people. Thanks again for coming to our production and enjoy the show!
